

In this Subhashish Panigrahi fictional debut, Debadatta Pati and Monalisa Moharana voice Bharat Majhi's poetic reinterpretation of abolition of India's caste system by the Bahujans—the majority and marginalised people—by reclaiming technological agency. In the futuristic Brahmanaprasad the dominant caste residents obstruct access, even internet, to rural Bahujanapada with the imposing Jatigiri mountain on their side. For dreams to break free, Bahujans must bring down the mountain.
